Flooding at KFOX

We know there are a lot of people who have it much, much worse. But some KFOX viewers have asked about our studio flooding.

Water cascading down the Franklins slammed into the KFOX parking lot and then through the ground floor of the station about 9am. At one point we had nearly three inches on the floor and water was cascading over and around the station. Throughout the day we've been trying to keep water out, and pump out what's inside.

The good news is that we're now getting dried out a bit and - most importantly - no one has been hurt.
